

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

One Dollar a Year. Share in Advances.

SPENCER COOPER : J. MILES LYTTLE.

COOPER & LYTTLE,

Publishers and Proprietors.

Entered at the Hazel Green Postoffice as second-class mail matter.

SPENCER COOPER : EDITOR

HAZEL GREEN, KY.

WEDNESDAY.....MARCH 17, 1886.

Democratic Ticket.

(Election First Monday in August, 1886.)

For County Attorney—JOHN E. COOPER.

For Commonwealth's Attorney—

GUL M. DAY.

County Judge—G. R. SWANCO.

County Attorney—J. C. LYTKIN.

County Sheriff—H. W. DOOG.

Sheriff—O. T. CENTER.

Circuit Court Clerk—J. E. LYTKIN.

Judge—G. W. CRILEY.

Surveyor—H. W. DEAKE.

Superintendent—J. H. COX.

County School Super.—JONATHAN M. ROSE.

Breathitt Announcements.

We are authorized to announce B. M.

ANDERSON, Esq., of the office of Senator or of Breathitt county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Dr. George C. McFarland, of Oak Law-

Hurst, is the anti-Bill Springer candidate for legislature, and is making things crack in that direction. If he dont get elected he will tan the lies of the other fellow.

We clip the above item from a Jacksonville (Ill.) letter to the Virginia (Va.)

Enquirer, and, though the people of Jacksonville may not think it our duty, we propose to tell them something of what we know of their candidate. Dr. Geo. C. Mc-Farland is one of the brainiest men we have ever seen. He is a good man, a gentleman, a good son, and a gentleman of fine social qualities. Jacksonville may have his peer, but it is safe to say, his superior cannot easily be found there, and with all due respect to his opponent, whoever he may be, we mu-say that the people of Jacksonville, Ill., would honor themselves in honoring him, and at the same time make sure of mainning a seat in the legislature.

With the convicts devolving upon him in a manner deserving of the warm praise of his entire constituency. He is a safe man to represent that beautiful city and if they want wise legislation, they will send him to represent them. During his stay in the blue grass region of this state he made many friends, who will all endorse him for the position to which he aspire, and for which he is so eminently fitted, and hope to hear of his preference.

The citizens of Mt. Sterling and Montgomery county at last awoke to a realization of the facts sometimes since pointed out by THE HERALD, and called a meeting of the leading men of the state to sound their alarm to the world. We have all along maintained the idea that the Kentucky and South Atlantic railroad could be extended to this section for less money, and would be of more benefit to Mt. Sterling, and would materially benefit town and county —and we held that to be our opinion.

Now that the public has wakened up to a better view of the truth, we hope the matter right along until the rest of the iron horse is heard in our midst.

They have the means to extend the road, and will realize more from that investment than it is possible to secure in any other they can make. The contemplated movetment towards extending the above road is a long way better than chasing butterflies like the Covington and Cumberland Gap,

Gap, Portmouth and Found Gap, etc., and we are glad they have taken the common sense view of it they have.

It is a remarkable fact that coldness between the rival mountain towns of Hazel Green and Campbell Hill is still as strong as ever. The character that for the space of two miles on Stillwater, where the cold waves drift the summer.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Young man, you are away off your base.

There is no frigidity between the people of Campion and Hazel Green—not even a frost line. You get your information from some man who does not know where he is going, or coming, for the coldness referred to is long gone, and is now so muted into mutual friend ship, that what is left of it would not freeze a five-cent can of cream.

A special from Ashland to all the daily papers has advised the detective force of Washington, D. C., to sift the tragedy for which Ellis, Neal and Craft are accused, and it is now given out that the real perpetrators of the crime were highly respected young men. The evidence against them is conclusive, and will show that the triple murder was committed early in the evening; that the perpetrators went to the house by appointment with one of the girls, who had previously met them, and that the triple murder followed an unintentional killing of the boy for resenting his sister on the girl.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want to have the law enforced, and that is likely to be a long-felt want. They grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for so long a time. They are anxious to see what is to be done, and that is what they are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the camp. The boy has been shot through the heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor, has been found in the Senate or house to place the name of the man. Pulaski, and the world are bound to wait and see what is to be done. They promise to do worse than shoot the boy again.

God save the commonwealth.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want

to have the law enforced, and that is likely

to be a long-felt want. They

grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for

so long a time. They are anxious to see

what is to be done, and that is what they

are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the

newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the

camp. The boy has been shot through the

heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor,

has been found in the Senate or house to

place the name of the man. Pulaski,

and the world are bound to wait and see

what is to be done. They promise

to do worse than shoot the boy again.

God save the commonwealth.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want

to have the law enforced, and that is likely

to be a long-felt want. They

grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for

so long a time. They are anxious to see

what is to be done, and that is what they

are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the

newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the

camp. The boy has been shot through the

heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor,

has been found in the Senate or house to

place the name of the man. Pulaski,

and the world are bound to wait and see

what is to be done. They promise

to do worse than shoot the boy again.

God save the commonwealth.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want

to have the law enforced, and that is likely

to be a long-felt want. They

grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for

so long a time. They are anxious to see

what is to be done, and that is what they

are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the

newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the

camp. The boy has been shot through the

heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor,

has been found in the Senate or house to

place the name of the man. Pulaski,

and the world are bound to wait and see

what is to be done. They promise

to do worse than shoot the boy again.

God save the commonwealth.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want

to have the law enforced, and that is likely

to be a long-felt want. They

grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for

so long a time. They are anxious to see

what is to be done, and that is what they

are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the

newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the

camp. The boy has been shot through the

heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor,

has been found in the Senate or house to

place the name of the man. Pulaski,

and the world are bound to wait and see

what is to be done. They promise

to do worse than shoot the boy again.

God save the commonwealth.

The Greenwood Muddle.

(Courier-Journal.)

The situation at Hazel Green is still

one of much moment. The people want

to have the law enforced, and that is likely

to be a long-felt want. They

grow restless as the hours go by, bringing

no promises of release from the tumbus

that has been the prison of the boy for

so long a time. They are anxious to see

what is to be done, and that is what they

are to be asked for re-enforcement.

They are to be asked for re-enforcement,

but there are several expressions in the

newspapers of a somewhat corroborative

to this, which indicate that a few more

guns would be warmly welcomed

by the commandant of the forces at the

camp. The boy has been shot through the

heart, and is dead. He is dead, but not yet

out of the race, no champion of honest labor,

has been found in the Senate or house to

